Ab OUT me (?)

The existing being or the created being?¹

To exist is to be present or to leave a presence?² PIERRE LEVY

The being that questions to exist or the being that establishes itself in existence?

On me nothing is like it is. Everything is a draft of being³

Me, reduced to a word? But, what word represents me?

One thing I know: I'm not my name.⁷

They gave me a name and they alienated myself from me⁸

VLADIMIR SAFATLE

To exist, it is necessary to have a language and find its breaking point. We are just there, where the language finds its breaking point. In reality, to exist is putting in motion a void that despoils a nomination that breaks the names⁹

... my inner name is: ZERO. It is an eternal beginning, permanently interrupted by my consciousness of beginning.¹⁰

I am the alchemist of myself.

I am a man who devours himself?

No, the fact is, I live in a constant mutation with new adaptations to my renewed living and I never reach the end of each way of existing.....¹¹

Our twisted society measured by an UNIQUEVERSE, tied by lines of thoughts, ramshackled by the hierarchy of:
terms_ methods_ codes_ languages_ concepts

And that's how, as delusional as it might seem this affirmation, the present life remains in its old atmosphere of rape, anarchy, disorder, delirium, of disarray, of chronic madness, of bourgeois inertia, of psychic anomaly (because it was not the man but the world that became abnormal), of assumed dishonesty and of insigne hypocrisy of filthy contempt for all that has race, in claim for an order based entirely on compliance with a primitive injustice, organized crime. Anyway, this is bad because the sick consciousness has, at this point, capital interest in not getting rid of the disease.¹⁴
